

Cornell To Consider Gulf Oil Investments

By CHARLES SENNET

Cornell's investment policies will meet considerable controversy in the coming week as the trustees meet to discuss policy and vote on two controversial stock proxies involving complex economic, political, and moral considerations.

The trustees will have to act on four proposals which will be discussed at the Gulf Oil Corporation's shareholders' convention to be held on April 27. The proposals are sponsored by the Task Force on Southern Africa of the United Presbyterian Church.

Members of the Task Force have worked with the Project on Corporate Responsibility, established by Ralph Nader, in an attempt to disengage Gulf Oil from its investments in the Republic of South Africa, and the Portuguese colonies of Angola and Mozambique.

Gulf Oil, the largest American investor in Portuguese Africa, pays about $20 million to Portugal per year, a figure which Gulf opponents point out as approximately 50 per cent of Portugal's annual military expenditure for Angola. Portugal is the last major colonial power in Africa, and has been condemned on many sides, including the United Nations, for social, political, and economic repression of its colonies.

Last year's Senate Public Affairs Committee examined Cornell's investments in southern Africa, and submitted a recommendatory bill which, if implemented, would instruct the university to file motions with any of six major corporations (Gulf is one) if their employment practices or human development programs were unsatisfactory.

This bill will be considered at the trustee investment committee meeting on Thursday. Trustee-designate

Minority Hiring Issue Continues Unresolved

By ROBERT SCHONFELD

"The contractor has reneged on all things in question that we thought had been agreed upon last night," said John Bryant, negotiator for the Southern Tier Area Negotiating Commission yesterday.

Bryant, who represents the black construction industry groups currently negotiating with university contractor Stewart and Bennett, Inc. on the hiring of minority workers, will issue a press release today on the progress of negotiations.

Talks contained yesterday without reaching a final agreement, and Bryant indicated the black construction workers will discuss future plans over the weekend.

He said that the agreement

Trustee-Designates' Role Elucidated by Trustees

By GARY L. RUBIN

Three leading trustees migrated to Ithaca yesterday to clarify the status of Cornell's six trustee-designate, who emerged from a three-hour briefing session with expressions of satisfaction.

According to Robert W. Purcell '32, chairman of the University Board of Trustees, the designates were told that "Pending action of the state legislature in amending the University charter, we aim to treat them as full-fledged trustees, excepting the right to vote."

The four students, one faculty member, and one Ithaca resident who have been elected to serve on the board are legally prohibited from voting until the charter is amended.

State Legislature

Purcell noted that "If the legislature tells the Board of Trustees that they don't want to have students on the board, then we'll all have a bit of a problem." He added, however, that the designates have been invited to participate in committee meetings under the assumption that no such event will occur.

The four students will all be permitted to attend Ithaca meetings of the board's Executive Committee, and one of them will be transported free of charge to New York committee meetings.

Certain of them were irritated last month when, classified as "guests" of the board rather than trustees, they were prohibited from attending the March Executive Committee meeting.

Committee Assignments

The designates will begin serving on regular board committees when annual committee assignments are made in June, and were asked yesterday to present their committee preferences.

Gordon C. Chang '73 and Stephanie V. Seremetis '72 requested assignment to the board committee on investments policy. Robert C. Gottlieb '72 asked to serve on the trustee executive committee, and Louise I. Shelley '72 requested placement on committees investigating buildings and properties and relations between statutory colleges and state government.

Mrs. Desdemona P. Jacobs of Boynton Junior High School persuaded Purcell to establish an ad hoc committee on University-community relations, on which she will serve. Prof. Paul Olum, mathematics, was not present at yesterday's meeting.

Much of yesterday's discussion reportedly concerned internal

Viet War Statement Applauded

Washington (AP) — Two top Senate leaders, Republican Hugh Scott and Democrat Robert C. Byrd said yesterday they believe President Nixon plans to remove all U.S. troops from Indochina by the end of his term in January 1973 — provided North Vietnam frees U.S. war prisoners.

Scott, the Senate GOP Leader, and Byrd, the Democratic whip, said in separate news conferences they drew this interpretation from Nixon's comments in briefing congressional leaders before Wednesday night's announcement of further U.S. troop withdrawals.

"He did not state a definite date," Byrd said, "but I had the very definite impression from what was said that the President has a date in mind."

Asked if the date was before the end of Nixon's term, the West Virginia Democrat replied "I think that is substantially correct as I understood the President."

Cosep's Seats

Delridge Hunter, director of COSEP, appeared before the University Senate's Executive Committee yesterday to discuss his refusal to conduct elections to fill COSEP's two senate seats.

Hunter reportedly told the committee that the senate is not relevant to the needs of COSEP students. The discussion was closed to the public.

According to several COSEP students, Hunter has never solicited their opinions on the advisability of electing senators, but Hunter declined yesterday to comment on the matter.

Senate Comm. Will Study Migrant Labor Camp Bill

By ROBERT A. MOLOFSKY

A bill which would establish a "model" migrant labor camp with sufficient medical, transportation, and educational programs, on the Cohn migrant labor camp, owned by the College of Agriculture, was distributed for study to the Senate Committee on Minority and Disadvantaged Interests groups last night.

In response to a sense of the body resolution passed by the senate, the committee designated a subcommittee to discuss with the College of Agriculture the future of the migrant labor camp. These discussions will focus on proposals presented by the College of Agriculture and others with a mandate that specific proposals be submitted to the Minority and Disadvantaged Interests Committee by May 1, 1971 so that the Senate may deal properly with the matter. It is to this subcommittee that the above bill has been referred.

Sponsored by Jeffrey Liddle '71, the proposal is an attempt to deal substantively with the problems of migrant labor. According to

ON THE FIRING LINE: Army ROTC cadets generally agree that Lt. Calley was guilty in the My Lai incident, but some express doubt about the justice of other U.S. actions in Vietnam as well.

'Conscience Salver?'

Cadets Argue Calley Case

By JAN WAGENHALS

Members of Army ROTC at Cornell generally accept last week's verdict in the Calley case and agree that Calley did violate military law and ethics. Opinions vary, however, on how much blame Calley should be made to assume.

Colonel Claude E. Bailey, commander of Army ROTC, had "no doubts" that Calley was "guilty by the facts in the case" and that the Army was "correct in bringing him to trial."

Bailey added, "If the Army is going to abide by the Geneva Convention and the rules of warfare, we could not do anything other than to fully investigate any and all incidents in this nature."

Classifying the civilians as prisoners of war, Bailey said, "You don't cut them down by gunfire, no matter what they are."

Major John D. Waghelstein, executive officer of Army ROTC who teaches a course in military justice, also supports the verdict of the Calley case, for the same reason that Calley was "guilty of violation of the code."

Pope Hits Defectors

Rome (AP) — Pope Paul VI assailed the defection of Roman Catholic priests "for vile earthly motives" on this Holy Thursday, and came close to comparing them to Judas who betrayed Christ.

The Pope denounced the defectors in a Holy Thursday ritual commemorating Christ's Last Supper.

"One must distinguish case from case, and show understanding, pity, forgiveness, patience perhaps in waiting for the return, and always love," he said of the defecting priests.

"But how can one fail on this occasion to weep from the deliberate abandonment by some and the moral mediocrity which thinks its natural and logical to break a long premeditated promise solemnly taken?"

Dems Hit Calley Review

Washington (AP) — Ten congressmen yesterday called President Nixon's intervention in the Lt. William Calley case "extremely improvident."

They applauded a protest of Nixon's action by the Army prosecutor of Calley.

"Capt. Aubrey Daniel's statement that he is appalled to see so many political leaders of the nation who have failed to see the moral issue in the Calley case is justified and is to be applauded," the ten said in a statement.

"As we have seen, the temptation toward demagoguery even affects the high office of the presidency," they said.

Nixon's announcement that he will make the ultimate decision in the case involving Calley, sentenced to life imprisonment for the killing of Vietnamese civilians at the village of My Lai,

Hussein Meets For Negotiation

By The Associated Press

A high-ranking Syrian military delegation met with Jordan's King Hussein in Amman yesterday to seek a peace settlement between the king's army and Palestinian guerrillas.

The meeting was unusual. Syria has been one of the sharpest Arab critics of Hussein and harbors a guerrilla force hostile to the monarchy.

Guerrillas and army troops traded machine-gun fire in the Jordanian capital as the talks went on. There were no reported casualties.

The Syrians, headed by Army Chief of Staff Maj. Gen. Mustafa Tlas, met with the king on their own initiative in hopes of working out a plan to relocate guerrilla commando bases and provide for their resupply.

Palestinian sources said top guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat was expected in Amman to meet with the Syrian delegation.

The Syrian bid to mediate the conflict may be successful because Damascus can exert heavy pressure on the guerrillas, who are massed close to the Syrian frontier and now receive their supplies from commando dumps inside the Syrian border.

has brought both approving and critical comments from various members of Congress.

Draft Board Members Resign

By The Associated Press

Draft board members in more than a dozen states have resigned in protest over the conviction and sentencing of Lt. William L. Calley Jr., saying they disagree with the verdict and want no part of a system they claim is unfair.

Selective Service System officials interviewed said the resignations would have little or no effect on upcoming inductions. And they stressed only a few members of the nation's 4,102 draft boards were involved.

Typical of those resigning was Ben. F. Stringfellow of the Hampton, Ark., board. "I will not and cannot in good conscience serve on a body that will send my son or anyone's son to combat in Vietnam not knowing whether he will return a convict or a hero," said Stringfellow.

In contrast, Roger G. Sherman, a member of the Indianapolis draft board, said, "Of course I'm continuing to do my bit. I have complete confidence the Army judicial system knows what it is doing."

The resignations were scattered. For example, four of New Mexico's 164 draft board members resigned. There were two reported resignations in Pennsylvania, three in Texas, about half a dozen in Indiana, eight in Iowa, six in Arkansas, eight in Nebraska, one in Utah, five in Illinois.

Robert Allmon, 50, was among the three members of the Harrison County, Iowa, board who resigned. "We just felt we could not, in all good conscience, draft men to be trained to kill and then have them possibly be court-martialed for doing what they were trained to do," he said.

Spring Recess Lengthened In Ithaca Schools

Spring recess for the Ithaca City School District will be three days longer than the kids expected.

The recess, which began yesterday at 3:15 p.m., had been shortened because of lost snow days to include only this coming Friday, Monday, and Tuesday. The Superintendent of Schools received word yesterday at 2:55 p.m. from the Legal Division of the State Education Department that the vacation would be restored to its original length and will last through next week.

Over twenty school districts in up-state New York have requested that the state grant them permission to hold less than the normal 180 days of school. The Ithaca Board of Education made the first of its many requests on March 8. Until today, these requests were denied.

Getting the Goods

The charges have been coming thick and fast about the Federal Bureau of Investigation's violation of the rights and privacies of politically active people in this country — especially since FBI records taken from Media, Pa. show a concentrated effort to obtain spies in organizations that have no history of law-breaking. The criterion for getting on the bureau's Christmas card list, it seems, is making J. Edgar's big toe itch, or something like that. Predictably, he is most ticklish about black groups. A recent article in The Village Voice, based on those Media records, reports that the FBI is gathering information on all BSU's (Black Student Unions), as they are known in the trade, as well as more political black organizations.

The recent charge by Representative Hale Boggs that the FBI has had him under surveillance and has bugged his phone and the resulting suggestion that it's time Hoover stepped down have drawn administration reaction ranging from the servile — Mitchell's apologize-to-a-great-American — to the hysterical — Deputy Attorney General Kleindienst's you-must-be-sick. J. Edgar's approval has always been the sweet scoop of ice cream on the administrations' Graham-cruste American apple pie and it is no surprise that Nixon, has much too big a sweet tooth to give it up.

But the very idea of espionage seems to have become distressingly easy. A major element of the new "pacification" program in Vietnam that will be costing the U.S. alone over a billion dollars, relies heavily on a "people's intelligence network" which will inform on enemy activities thereby "neutralizing the Vietcong infrastructure" in South Vietnamese villages and eliminating 14,000 Viet Cong agents.

Compare this with the FBI's vigorous recruiting of bill collectors, janitors, university telephone operators, postmen and people who like to watch garbage to report on the lives — and garbage — of, pardon the expression, law-abiding U.S. citizens — thought criminals, to you.

There are subversives all over and all over there are people willing to rip apart communities in the most insidious ways to save them from the people who make them up. The dossiers mount — Viet Cong, BSU, peace, even Louisiana representative — in one sad bleeding fraternity of the ratted on.

I Remember, Mama

When the seasons change it's always time to get nostalgic. A friend of ours recalls when some elbow in the ribs like the Farnsworth report would have been the occasion for a little hit and run radicalizing. You get a picket line, he mauls, and on that picket line you get a lot of fraternity boys who want their girlfriends to be able to get the pill at the clinic. Then you start talking to them about other things that are wrong with the clinic and with health care generally in this country and why, and pretty soon you're educating them generally and you're building up some respect for yourself around campus because you've got such a solid issue and are so constructive and all, he wistfully smirks. As they don't say on television anymore, one puff and its springtime about three years ago.

Vietnam: World's Largest Oil Leak?

Iris Portny

Copyright 1971, The Cornell Daily Sun

Second of Two Parts

The facts concerning the possible interest of American oil companies in Southeast Asian offshore oil rights remain extremely difficult to obtain from official sources. The questions of congressmen have been met by elusive replies from oil companies. Saigon refers vaguely to "foreign firms". And the State Department denies having assured anyone about anything in the matter.

An aide for Rep. Jim Abourezk (D., S.D.), as well as one for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, noted that the situation had been entirely overlooked until February, when the Another Mother for Peace group began a letter-writing campaign to Congress. The group's research at that time, though far from conclusive, did convince a number of Senators and Congressmen that the situation warranted an investigation.

Bella Abzug

Public attention was first called to the matter February 26, in a press conference called by Rep. Bella Abzug (D-N.Y.) and nine other Manhattan Congressmen. Mrs. Abzug, along with 24 Congressional co-sponsors, introduced resolution H.R. 342 requesting hearings into what, if any, assurances have been given either to oil companies or the Saigon government concerning the area's future stability. Rep. Abourezk, a co-sponsor of the Abzug bill, also requested that the House Foreign Affairs Committee investigate the matter.

Rep. William Anderson (D., Tenn.) has long kept watch on the oil companies' activity in his TVA dominated district. For this reason, explained a staff assistant, Anderson is concerned about the oil companies "gaining a monopoly on coal and nuclear fuel also."

The most surprising reaction to the offshore oil interest question came from Sen. Philip Hart (D-Mich.). Although a long time dove, he made a speech in the Senate rejecting any substantial validity to the theory that oil is keeping us in Vietnam. He has certainly not become a sudden supporter of Administration policy, but maintains that the confusion, coupled with a desire of many to credit the war to some logical, economic reason, has created an argument that is more appealing than sound.

Misprint

In one specific instance, the Senator's aide referred to a particular figure that has generated much of the concern and suspicion among proponents of the theory. A publication called "World Oil" reported that by 1975 the oil production in the waters stretching from Korea to Indonesia might exceed 400 million barrels per day. The figure was picked up and used in a number of the articles written on the subject. The senator's office traced the figure to its source of a year and a half ago, a Singapore geologist. At that time the geologist predicted to a UPI reporter that the production might exceed four million barrels per day in the area. Because of a supposed misprint, the figure became 400 million barrels per day. Some sources have also used the figure as 400,000 barrels per day for production in the Vietnam area. (Kuwait's production figures for 1969 were 940,041 barrels per day).

It is due to this error, and a strong belief that "for a variety of political and economical reasons, a race among oil companies to develop these areas now would simply not make sense", that the Senator "does not wish to pursue this particular line of reasoning in arguing for a complete withdrawal from the area." Instead, the assistant went on to explain, the Senator "maintains that the Vietnam war is the product of a bureaucracy run amok and a military machine that can't turn back. People desperately want to believe there's a rational reason for our presence in Vietnam. There is none. It is illogical."

Oil Pressure

At this point the question of whether American oil interests are exerting pressures on the Administration's foreign policy is still merely speculative. However, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee already has a man researching the situation. It is known that American oil companies already hold leases for offshore rights in the Malaysia - Indonesia area. The area of present concern stretches from the South China Sea, to Indonesia, all the way to Australia.

It is known that back in 1967 the UN contracted a company to begin seismic sounding to determine whether or not oil is present in the area. On October 23, 1970 (a month before a petroleum bill was introduced in the Vietnamese Assembly, Philip Tresize, Assistant Secretary for Economic Affairs, was reported to have admitted that there is "a short-range fuel problem." Beyond this, as a Senate Foreign Relations Committee staff assistant pointed out, "the seriousness and extent of involvement, and its effect on American foreign policy can only be speculated, because no one knows, or will admit, the definite discovery of oil."

The Press

The surprising attitude which Sen. Hart has adopted can be matched only by the fact that the newspapers seem to have chosen the same one. The dispute has been going on for the past month. Congressmen have introduced a resolution requesting an investigation. Senators have brought the matter to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Oil companies that have been contacted have remained extremely vague.

And for some reason, the company conducting the seismic soundings offshore refuses to reveal whether its findings have been positive. But, as Rep. Anderson's aide pointed out, "private corporations don't have to admit anything!" Of course, if some one would admit what they know, the controversy might be settled.

At this point, the cases for and against the existence of strong American oil interest in Southeast Asian waters are basically speculation. But certainly the situation has uncovered enough unanswered questions to warrant investigation. Interest is spreading in the Congress. The newspapers are still some what dumb on the subject. Why?

Ringmasters and Young Bucks

Gordon Chang

Hate literature still comes in the mail unsolicited. In the last month I've received copies of Common Sense and The Thunderbolt ("The White Man's Viewpoint.") The first is published by the Christian Educational Association at 530 Chestnut St., Union, N.J., and the other one is printed by The Thunderbolt Corporation, P.O. Box 6263, Savannah, Ga.

Both papers are anti-semitic (to say the least). The Thunderbolt contains the usual drivel that the New Left, New Deal, liberalism, Communism and Marxism are Jewish (which is to say that they are alien and evil). In addition, they carried a letter which charged that granny glasses, stringy hair, beards and sideburns are part of a Jewish plot to disguise Jews at demonstrations.

On the other hand, Common Sense believes that Nixon's welfare plan, the World Food Bank, the International Monetary Fund, and the Export Import Bank are Zionist. "We Common Sense people, looking at the cold facts, have concluded that Jews are a bunch of Jerks."

Common Sense warns us that the basic purpose of the Jew is to reduce gentiles to the proletariat and "make himself master of the world. Jews firmly believe that the Jewish hand is always quicker than the Gentile eye. The Jew does not want everybody to be on the 'Right,' nor does he want everybody to be on the 'Left.' The Jew himself is neither on the Right nor the Left. He stands above such vulgar matters. He is the Ringmaster of the circus, and he cracks his whip over both the Right and the Left, and makes them jump through the hoops he has devised."

"Communism? There is no such animal, never was any such animal, and never could be any such animal. There is nothing but a collection of cheap little Jewish charlatans practicing typical Jewish quackery. This is not a battle between rich and poor, or between capital and labor. It is a battle between Jew and Gentile."

Common Sense believes that the Soviet Union is controlled by New York Jewry. "Somebody in New York pushed a button and started Khrushchev yapping before the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, denouncing Stalin as a monster." To Common Sense then, Stalin was a hero because he would not play along with the Zionists.

Thunderbolt also believes that the Jew is "Public Enemy Number One." Yet being Southern, they also fear the black man as a menace. Not surprisingly, their rhetoric is similar to Hitler's: "Life is race survival." The pages of the paper are filled with "scientific proof" of black inferiority. There are also plenty of stories of white girls raped by "young buck niggers" who "ogle" at them in public. There is even an article how "mongrelization" destroyed the white Arayan civilization of India.

There is also advertising in The Thunderbolt. There is one appeal for funds to free Nazi Rudolf Hess from Spandau. And for just one dollar you can buy 50 handbills which reveal "scientific similarities between Negro and Ape."

Cornell To Vote On Gulf's Role In South Africa

Robert C. Gottlieb '72 plans to issue a memorandum to the trustees which will specify the various courses of action the board can take in voting Cornell's 94,993 shares of Gulf stock. Although he sees limited possibility for full evaluation of the Gulf issue, Gottlieb hopes that the trustees will eventually call for the establishment of a special Senate committee to investigate and recommend action on every proxy which Cornell receives. Presently, the treasurer has authority to vote all of Cornell's stock proxies, except where they are exceptionally controversial, as was last year's decision on Project GM's proposals, and on certain corporate mergers.

Gottlieb has presented a bill to the Senate requesting that its Public Affairs Committee make recommendations for trustee policy in voting Cornell's Honeywell stock. Honeywell's shareholders will vote on proposals to restructure its Board of Directors, to stop the manufacturing of anti-personnel bombs, and to halt Honeywell's involvement in the Republic of South Africa. Due to lack of time, however, the Senate has been unable to make any recommendations to the Board.

The issue of university investments has become especially salient since Sen. Lee Metcalf's (D.-Mont.) investigation last year. He examined the investment policies of 53 universities in 161 gas, oil, and electric companies — widely regarded as "sound" investments — and found these corporations to be particularly negligent in employment of minority groups, pollution control, price control, and consumer protection.

Metcalf urged universities to use their persuasive powers as large shareholders in "leading to some changes in public policy which are beyond the reach of public officials."

Many university officials, however, do not agree with Metcalf's investment philosophy. Harvard University's Committee on University Relations with Corporate Enterprise recommended that the university adhere to a "maximization-of-return" policy on investments, and that it not initiate corporate battles, except in cases which either involve the immediate community, or violate our society's values.

According to the report, Harvard should never invest in countries "smacking with racism," such as the Republic of Africa, but should continue its policies in American corporations which do business in South Africa. Harvard University owns 671,187 shares of Gulf Oil stock.

Cornell also puts great value on the financial "return" which will be derived from its investments, since it is a prime source of working capital. Energy stocks and utilities, according to Robert T. Horn, Associate University Treasurer, are very attractive in this respect. Cornell owns large amounts of stock in electric, gas, and oil companies.

Cornell's official investment policies, particularly in areas of social and political interest, are being defined by the Ad Hoc Investments Committee of the trustees, chaired by Walter G. Barlow, a public relations consultant from New York, and a trustee. This committee will report to the Investment Committee at next week's Board meeting.

"Cornell's real impact is not through its stock ownership, but through its educational and research programs," said Neal R. Stamp, University Counsel. He sees Cornell's role in the same sense as defined by the Harvard report; as a center of education and inquiry, as opposed to political institution.

Joseph S. Barr '21, an investment broker in Ithaca, said he felt great displeasure with "students who are trying to pressure universities into selling their stock." He called Gulf Oil Corp. "an outstanding success story," which he attributed to excellent management. He cited several reasons for its great security, and repudiated all criticisms of its policy. When informed that the American Presbyterian Church, not students, is bringing proceedings against the corporation, Barr commented, "They ought to tend to their own business and save a few goddam souls."

Wild World Of Sports

Dallas (AP) — Dallas Cowboy football star Lance Rentzel pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of exposing himself to a 10-year-old girl and was assessed a five-year sentence with the understanding he receive regular medical and psychiatric care.

The 27-year-old Rentzel said, "I plan to work with my doctor until the problem is resolved. I promise that."

Rentzel's football future in doubt although he said, "I promised the team I'll be back and I will."

Rentzel is the husband of motion picture and television personality Joey Heatherton.

With tears welling in his eyes, he told reporters in the Dallas County courtroom, "I want to thank the team for standing by me to a man. It was the highlight of my athletic career."

Former Arts Dean Lucas To Work on HEW Council

Former Assistant Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences Pearl E. Lucas has accepted an invitation from Elliot L. Richardson, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, to serve on the Advisory Council on Graduate Education.

The Council, which is under the jurisdiction of the Office of Education, is to advise the Commissioner of Education on matters of general policy arising in the administration of programs relating to graduate education.

Miss Lucas, who is currently enrolled as a graduate student in the Department of History, was dismissed from her position as assistant dean one year ago in a controversy about her role in the COSEP program. She was subsequently reinstated to her post, and she officially resigned last August.

Before coming to Cornell in 1968, Miss Lucas had received an international diploma in Montessori education from the Washington, D.C. Montessori Institute and worked at the Dr. Maria Montessori School in New Rochelle, New York.

In 1967, under the Drew Foundation, she helped establish an international Montessori primary class in Public School 123 in Harlem.

She holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Education from the City College of New York and has studied at New York University, Columbia University and Exeter College of Oxford University in England.

While serving on the 20 member commission, Miss Lucas expects to continue her graduate studies at Cornell.

Legal Bets Start in NYC

New York (AP) — Grand Central Terminal took on the air of a racetrack grandstand yesterday as the city's Off-Track Betting Corp., the nation's first legalized offtrack wagering system, finally broke from the gate.

Already $5.5 million in debt, the corporation took its first bets at a 10-window facility in the railroad depot, at a six-window parlor in Queens and by telephone from customers who had previously established credit.

The opening was a happy day for Mayor John V. Lindsay and corporation chairman and president Howard J. Samuels. It was also a relief, as an advertisement announcing the system's debut-delayed by labor and computer problems —

"OTB opens today
"Whew"

The terminal, normally a byway for commuters, shoppers and businessmen taking shortcuts through the concourse, became crowded throughout the day as up to 600 persons stood on line to place bets on the night's trotter and pacer action at Roosevelt Raceway.

Among the bettors were a number of apparent novices, who readily accepted whatever advice was available — and there was plenty — from veteran racegoers and kibbitzers.

As the lines at the betting windows grew, knots of men in business suits or overalls and women in miniskirts or pantsuits formed on the concourse floor, huddling around entry sheets and newspapers discussing odds.

'Militant Feminist' Gets Position

Judith Long Laws, a "militant feminist" from the University of Chicago School of Business, was recently appointed to a joint assistant professorship in sociology and psychology, according to Prof. Leonard Reissman, chairman of the sociology department.

"I've been interested in female studies for a while," Mrs. Laws said. "I got offers from such departments, but I think it's of value to be in a straight academic department."

"The sociology department knew my plans in regard to feminist courses and still wanted me," she concluded.

The course will be similar to the one Mrs. Laws taught at University of Chicago. "I hope to teach people the biases and what's missing in the literature of social psychology," she said.

However the course has not been approved as yet, according to Reissman. He said that there may be joint sponsorship with the Female Studies Program.

According to Mrs. Laws, a seminar in self-identity theory is also being considered for next spring.

Mrs. Laws received her B.A. from Radcliffe College in 1961. She completed her Ph.D. in social psychology at the University of Michigan in 1968. She has written articles on female sexual identity and has one forthcoming in the Journal of Social Issues.

Room Needs Exceed Available Space

By JESS WITTENBERG

An unprecedented rise in the number of students requesting on-campus living space has resulted in a tight squeeze on dormitory rooms for the 1971-72 academic year.

"I would say we definitely have a housing problem," said Mrs. Ruth Darling, associate dean of students. "An unanticipated number of students seem to be interested in living on campus."

According to Mrs. Darling, 145 or more beds are available for selection on April 19. But close to 800 students have applied for the rooms — and it is clear that many will be disappointed.

The tightest squeeze has been felt by the students who have applied for single rooms, which are the last spaces to be assigned in the selection process. With applications for renewed occupancy up 23 per cent over last year, and space reserved by groups up 81 per cent, the number of beds remaining for the single applicants is at an all-time low.

The situation may not be quite as bad as it appears. The Dean of Students Office anticipates a number of cancellations of room contracts for a variety of reasons. Also, according to Mrs. Darling, some of the students who applied did so only to have an alternate choice in case other housing plans failed.

"There is a considerable amount of anxiety, and a lot of concern, on the part of students," said Mrs. Darling. Students' parents have telephoned her office with questions about the shortage.

"A couple of my friends really took a beating," said a resident advisor in University Hall. "At least five of my freshmen were in the drawing, and one guy was really banking on it."

"The drawing" is the process by which selection order was determined. Numbers from one to one thousand were drawn — and men with numbers as low as 190 were advised to "start looking for an apartment."

Housing officials had recognized the unpredictability of the room requests in advance. Dean of Students Elmer E. Meyer said that planners have had no "normal" year with which to compare present demands.

The abolition of the upper class female residence requirement and the opening of the North Campus dorms in 1969 and 1970 have been "unknown variables" in the planning process, said Mrs. Darling.

Still, this year's rise in the demand for rooms took the Dean of Students office somewhat by surprise. "Why do so many people want to live in the dorms now? Have we made them so attractive all of a sudden?" asked Dean Meyer.

Housing authorities emphasize that the University will find space for the overflow of students. Possible steps include the renting by the University of some houses near campus, or the changing to triples of some rooms that were used as doubles when housing space was more plentiful.

If, however, the trend toward increased on-campus living continues through the next few years, other steps may have to be taken. Though Cornell has no plans for additional construction of dorms in the near future, according to Lewis S. Roscoe of the university planning office, Mrs. Darling said that this may have to change.

There Are Some Things You Can't Discount!

One fine day, some years ago, our large family, originally from Chenango Valley, moved to Ithaca.

We purchased the Campus Liquor Store at 306 College Avenue ... across from the fire station ... and settled down to the quiet life.

We enjoyed skiing at Greek Peak and participating in the baseball leagues, both coaching and playing.

Then came the DISCOUNT LIQUOR war, and peace in our industry was clouded.

We did not join the sell brigade ... nor did we bandwagon the "case after case-for peanuts" philosophy. Business judgement tells us the U.S. Post Office can't sell 6c stamps 2 for a dime. For a business to survive, you've got to make an honest profit. We all must make a decent living.

We're an honest-to-goodness profit minded liquor store who survived the discount war with minimum discomfort. RIGHT ON!

Need Tranquilizing?

DORON SCHWARZ

A NEW LEAF. Starring Walter Matthau and Elaine May. Directed by the latter. At the STRAND.

Yes, life is dull and we all need a break from its routines. So we trot ourselves over to the pictures, indulge in some popcorn, and sample the precarious thrills of voyeuristic escape. After all, this is Ithaca, where one can see in a bank window a sign reading, "You supply the will power," and in another window around the corner, a stuffed owl. ("Is this a mockery?" you ask.) When the film unrolls, your doubts are forgotten, for the moment. It's like taking a tranquilizer; your mind is dulled.

Well folks, "A New Leaf" is just one such sugared pill guaranteed to distract your senses and keep you helplessly rolling in the aisles. It's a handy little gadget just bulging with promised laughs and lavish scenery. It's not illusion, you understand.

Walter Matthau's extravagant tastes and spending deplete his once large resources. Compelled by poverty he marries a botanist, Elaine May, who lacks all graces yet is rich enough to support the affluence he has always taken for granted. At first he resolves to poison her, but when he discovers her devotion, he accepts her inadequacies and agrees to protect her.

Characters are caricatures and the plot is only a vehicle for the gags (good medicine, that). The absurdity would have been artful, perhaps even irreverent, if a hard core cynic like W.C. Fields had played lead. W.C. Fields' face is fleshy and cold, his eyes inaccessible; Walter Matthau has a sloppy face, soft enough to permit traces of self-pity and sentimentalities. Thus allusions to real feelings intrude upon an impossible situation and the fantasy degenerates into an escape.

This film somehow belongs on the late night tube. Reduced to 23 inches, it could amuse some bored insomniacs. I can just see it now: the "Times," in its T.V. listings, would comment, "Good natured. Our favorite: the proposal scene."

Here are the second and third editions of my fowl series, "47 Ways to do Chicken". The former is a courtesy of Susan C. Straley grad (who wins 50 coins) and the latter is an old Mudgeon Family Favorite.

Susan has provided, with her recipe, an exotic title:

Chicken and Rice

Brown the chicken pieces (fryer size) in butter. Add rice (amount desired) and amount water required by rice, bay leaf, salt, pepper and lemon juice from one half lemon — if you want more lemon flavor, add the lemon rind and remove when done. Throw in mushrooms if handy. Cover and cook (simmer) until rice is done. The chicken will be done also. Takes about 30 minutes.

Easiest

Simply broil chicken pieces slowly — but first cover them with a generously thin layer of seasoning salt. Chicken remains especially juicy.

Cinema Roundup

Little Big Man. Dustin Hoffman, as the ancient survivor of Custer's last stand, tells the story of that violent debacle from the side of both the Indian and the white man. Rather bloody, but the acting is excellent. AT THE TEMPLE. Recommended.

Waterloo. Rod Steiger is the latest to play Napoleon in this all-star epic dealing with "the battle that changed the face of the world," as the ad says. AT THE CINEMA.

Bonnie and Clyde. The criminal escapades of Faye Dunaway, Warren Beatty, and three additional misfits are at the same time frightening and funny. Be prepared for a brutal ending, though. Friday and Saturday AT IVES 120. Recommended.

The Gospel According to Saint Matthew. Probably the most well-conceived and sensitive film ever made about the life of Christ. Friday and Saturday AT THE STATLER. Recommended.

The Birthday Party. The cinematic version is true to Pinter's play about the fate of a musician who becomes involved with the tenants of a sordid, run-down boarding house. Sunday AT THE STATLER.

Black Will Present "All Things Black"

By GARY L. B.

The Africana Research Center is presenting an all-black theatrical production, "All Things Black," to be performed in the public May 8-9.

The cast of the production includes COSE, a downtown student organization of the community.

According to Langston Hughes, "Theatre at the African and director of 'The program is a diversity of the blues — from the spiritual from the blues to rhythm and blues revolution."

James E. Turner, the center, indicated "Things" will be a nationwide black art — involving people, as opposed to intellectual artists.

The Cornell production "Things" will be a similar program in Everett at the universities, under the title of "United." He said the title signifies that "Black" united in any way they're doing, where black people are.

Production plans Alice Statler perform benefits for the Africana Center in accordance with University policy under four percent reductions under three years.

They plan to solicit donations from foundations, merchants, and the interest of the public.

several grads and undergraduates to discuss the procedure being used to select a Senior chair.

The discussion brought forward three major concerns about the selection process. First was the possibility that a decision should be made before black scholars and other minority academicians have been reviewed in the same process.

"This is particularly important," said Turner, "since the chair concerns itself with social and political institutions."

Secondly that the chair shouldn't be demeaned by political considerations, and last that there should be a call for an open dialog and forum throughout the University to evaluate credentials and to decide who is to be appointed to the chair.

"As it is an all-university chair and the most prestigious," Turner reported, "we feel justified in asking for the fullest participation in screening and selection by the faculty and the students."

The Center, he added, "is not pushing any particular candidate."

Other scholars being considered for the chair include: James David Barber, Professor of political science, Yale University; John Higham, professor of history and chairman of the American culture program, University of Michigan; S. Cushing Strout, professor of English, Cornell University; James Tobin, Sterling Professor of Economics, Yale University; Robin M. Williams, Henry Scarborough Professor of Social Science, Cornell University; and William Appleman Williams, professor of history, Oregon State University.

The selection procedure for the American scholar to fill the post of the John L. Senior University Professor of American Institutions has been subject to criticism since the visit last Monday of Daniel Patrick Moynihan, one of the men currently being considered for the position.

The fact that he met with only the special faculty committee that will recommend candidates, has brought forth reservations held by members of the Cornell community.

Moynihan, professor of education and urban studies, Harvard University and former counselor to President Nixon, one of the several was interviewed by a special faculty committee chaired by Dean Robert D. Miller of the University Faculty which will present a list of recommended candidates to President Dale R. Corson. The final decision will be made by the Board of Trustees.

In a recent meeting of about twenty graduate students, specializing in the field of social organization and change in the Sociology Department, potential departmental actions regarding the John L. Senior Chair were discussed.

The grads raised the issue that "Opportunities for open and public discussion regarding this important position had been restricted, in part out of apprehensions that adverse reactions might arise in some sectors of the Cornell community."

In an ad hoc meeting held at the Africana Studies and Research Center, Director James E. Turner met with artists. General admissions prices will be set in accordance with attendance expectations and production costs.

Cornell Mobe Sponsors Protest Against Federal Telephone Tax

By MAIA LICKER

In order to publicly demonstrate resistance to the Federal telephone tax that was instituted to fund the Vietnam war, the Cornell Mobe is sponsoring a demonstration tomorrow at the Ithaca office of the Telephone Company and at Southside House, a local community center.

People who refuse to pay "the war tax" are urged to assemble at 10 a.m. at the telephone company office, at 208 E. Buffalo St. The plan then calls for a march from the telephone office to Southside House, at 305 S. Plane St., where demonstrators will be asked to donate the money they withheld from their phone bills.

According to Douglas Kenyon grad, the money will be donated to Southside's Early Childhood Development program, as a demonstration that "people want their money to be used for the development of children here not, the destruction of children in Vietnam."

"This act compels the participants to examine their own depth of commitment to help to end this war."

According to war resistance organizations in New York City, people who refuse to pay the tax could possibly be charged with a misdemeanor, under Section 7203 of the Internal Revenue Code. They could be imprisoned up to a year and fined up to $10,000.

However, experiences of people who have refused to pay the tax indicate that the government does not press criminal charges in these cases.

For example, Carl Kukkonen grad, a Mobe member who has not paid the tax in over a year, stated that the IRS has not threatened him with criminal charges, nor has his telephone service been cut off.

Kukkonen said that he received letters from the IRS, which threatened to "seize property" if he did not pay the $4.32 plus a 13 cents interest charge they claimed he owed them. About a year after he stopped paying the tax, the IRS deducted that amount from his bank account.

Judge Gives Law Lecture

In a 45 minute lecture interrupted several times by the laughter of about 100 law students last night, Judge Owen McGivern described the "enormous opportunities for young lawyers" today and outlined the qualities and knowledge necessary for success.

Speaking in the Myron Taylor Moot Court Room, Judge McGivern of the Appellate Division of the New York State Supreme Court observed that "some judges are even-tempered — they're mad all the time."

"The personality, political prejudices, age and health of a judge may influence his decisions," he said. He observed that a good lawyer must be aware of these personal peculiarities and use them to the advantage of his client.

"A lawyer," said McGivern, "must sell his voice, his pen and his personal capacity for indignation." Without a thorough knowledge of history, philosophy, and literature he is "just another legal mechanic," he added.

When asked how he got to be a judge, McGivern chuckled for several seconds and then answered: "Where I grew up, on Tenth Ave. in New York City, boys either went to the bench or went to the chair."

On how he was chosen for his first judgeship, McGivern said: "I was elected to the City Court (in New York City) with the help of God and Tammany Hall."

McGivern advocated the elimination of the jury trial in civil cases. The backlog of cases due to lengthy jury trials is "out of all control," he said, with cases delayed over five years in some counties.

The judge wound up his lecture by quoting an old trial lawyer: "These are the conclusions on which I base my facts," he said.

Game Farm Will Release Birds

By LAURA BUDOFKY

About 20,000 wild game birds, including Chinese Ringneck Pheasants, Korean Ringneck Pheasants and Japanese Green Pheasants, formerly raised and kept at the Ithaca Game Farm on Ithaca Road, will be released throughout New York State shortly, with the closing of the game farm.

Herbert Doig, chief of the Bureau of Wildlife of the State Department of Environmental Control, said the farm closing is part of a funds cutback, due to cuts in the bureau's budget.

All birds will be released by early May into specific sites termed by Doig as "suitable habitats."

According to James Fenner, president of the Tompkins County Federation of Sportsmen Club, most of the birds will not survive in the environments into which they are being released.

"These pheasants like farm land like buckwheat farms and corn farms, which no longer exist," said Fenner. "They can't survive in the brush country. The foxes and weasels and hunters will get them." Mr. Fenner pointed out that the bureau is releasing 5,500 birds in the Albany area which are too young to fly and will most likely die.

The Sportsmen are objecting to the release of the birds because it will mean an end to the supply of breeding stock of wild game birds. The poor survival chances of the birds will mean a decrease in the amount of game and no replenishment of the supply.

The increased hunting pressure, says Fenner, will mean a further decrease of birds, and possible reaction from farmers who will find an increased number of hunters on their land, where the birds can survive.

The species of birds which are being released have not been surviving well in the habitats they have been released into previously, commented Doig.

"I think the bureau is operating according to the Leopold philosophy of game management which devotes time to game that can easily survive in the environment, rather than game which has difficulty surviving," said Fenner. "It's probably cheaper and the release is just one way to cut costs."

The bureau now has a plan to turn the game farm into an ecological research unit, in cooperation with the Department of Natural Resources of the State College of Agriculture of Cornell.

Personnel, previously employed by the game farm, are still uncertain of their future.

"The decisions are being made down at the Capitol," said Doig in reference to the personnel. Only Richard Reynolds, manager of the game farm since 1937, is certain about retaining his job. Reynolds will stay to maintain the game farm grounds.

Red Meets Island Laxmen

By PAUL KAYE

The Big Red lacrosse team will be looking for some sweet revenge tomorrow when they take on the Long Island Athletic Club at Hofstra University in Hempstead. The laxmen will try to avenge their only loss of last season, when they bowed to LIAC in a 10-9 squeaker.

Since Long Island is not a collegiate team, tomorrow's game is an exhibition and will not count on the Red record. However, Coach Richie Moran sees the game as a key contest in preparation for what he considers the toughest schedule that Cornell has ever faced.

Moran also has personal reasons for wanting to beat the Islanders. He played with them for four years and coached them to the first of their three consecutive national club championships in 1968. Bill Ritch, LIAC mentor, was the head man at Sewanhaka (L.I.) High School when Moran was the lacrosse team's captain in 1955.

Standing in the way of the road to Cornell's psychological satisfaction is one of the most impressive collections of lacrosse players in the country. All of the Long Island players were standouts on other teams; many were college All-Americans, others played on various other outstanding club squads.

Long Island has played six games, crushing Yale, 15-4, and highly rated Cortland, 16-4. They are undefeated in six starts.

JOHN BURNAP
All-American

The L.I.A.C. attack is led by three-time All-America Jack Heim, and by 33-year-old Jim Martone, Club All-Star for the last 10 years. Even more incredible is the fact that the second attack unit is also made up of three ex-All-Americans, including club league MVP Tom Postel, who was the nation's leading scorer in '66 and '67 at C.W. Post College.

Seasoned goalies Bob Ricci and Jim McGuone share the netminding chores. McGuone played in last year's encounter on Lower Alumni Field, as Ricci sat out part of the season with an injury.

Despite this formidable array, Coach Moran has "no intention of getting beaten." He has been quite pleased with the team's workouts since the spring trip, and even though there is no question that Cornell is by far the underdog, nobody on the squad thinks Long Island can't be had.

The Ithacans' game plan will follow the usual Moran formula of a fast-breaking offensive, stressing speed and alertness. The attack units will not change from the Baltimore lineup, with Pat Gallagher, Al Rimmer, and Glen Mueller as the first unit.

Defensively, Moran will assign All-America John Burnap to guard Heim, and junior Bill Ellis will be matched up with the ever steady Martone.

The decision as to who will be in the crease will be a tough one. Both Bob Rule and Bob Buchmann have been sharp in practice throughout the week.

The first midfield unit is finally set, with Bob Shaw and Bill Molloy being joined by former attackman Frank Davis. Davis has the potential to be an outstanding scorer as well as a fine defensive player.

The Long Island game is a tune-up for the home opener against Cortland next Wednesday on Lower Alumni Field.

Red Lights Row at Penn

"Nervous excitement" is how coach Tom Lonergan describes the mood of Cornell's lightweight crew team as it awaits a showdown tomorrow in Philadelphia with a tough Penn squad. At stake in the meet is the Matthews Cup, which Cornell won last year by the narrowest of margins.

In their first meet of the season the Quakers finished an amazing 15 seconds ahead of Rutgers and Georgetown boats.

Before meeting Penn the lights have another obstacle to overcome: their own weight. They will meet this foe on the Teagle Scales today; the average weight of the eight rowers has to be 155 pounds or less, with a maximum weight of 160 for any rower.

Competing will be the varsity and second varsity boats.

The tennis team opens with a pair of tough matches over the weekend. Coach Edward Moylan's netmen visit the U.S. Naval Academy today and open Ivy League play tomorrow at Penn.

Junior Dirk Dugan is the key to the Big Red hopes. One of five returning letterman, the southpaw won the Eastern Intercollegiate championship last spring and posted a 7-4

Pictures talk. Some little boys don't.

Some inner-city ghettos have special schools. For little boys who don't talk.

Not mute little boys. But children so withdrawn, so afraid of failure, they cannot make the slightest attempt to do anything at which they might fail.

Some don't talk. Some don't listen. Most don't behave. And all of them don't learn.

One day someone asked us to help.

Through Kodak, cameras and film were distributed to teachers. The teachers gave the cameras to the kids and told them to take pictures.

And then the miracle. Little boys who had never said anything, looked at the pictures and began to talk. They said "This is my house." "This is my dog." "This is where I like to hide." They began to explain, to describe, to communicate. And once the channels of communication had been opened, they began to learn.

We're helping the children of the inner-city. And we're also helping the adults. We're involved in inner-city job programs. To train unskilled people in useful jobs.

What does Kodak stand to gain from this? Well, we're showing how our products can help a teacher—and maybe creating a whole new market. And we're also cultivating young customers who will someday buy their own cameras and film. But more than that, we're cultivating alert, educated citizens. Who will someday be responsible for our society.

After all, our business depends on our society. So we care what happens to it.

More than a business.

Diamondmen Meet Yale, Brown

By REGINA PAUL

Fresh from a 6-3 decision over Scranton in their home opener Tuesday, the Big Red diamondmen are off this weekend on a three-game road trip. The Cornellians meet Yale today and Brown in a doubleheader tomorrow.

Against coach Ken MacKenzie's Elis, who posted a 6-23 season last year, Big Red coach Ted Thoren will start an experienced battery of seniors: southpaw John Geise and catcher Ed Kosteva. Righthander John Dougherty and lefthander Fred Yosca will man the bullpen.

The infield will sport Fred Hoge at first, captain Buddy Witkoski at second, John Malone at third, and Tom Boettcher, whose .311 batting average led last year's team, at shortstop. Jim Pilkey in right, Mike Kelly in center, and Pete Watzka in left will be Cornell's outfielders.

Despite last year's horrendous showing, Yale's squad may provide some competition for the men from Ithaca, since it boasts eleven returning lettermen to the Big Red's nine. The New Haven spotlight falls on team captain Joe Massey at second base and outfielder Chuck Sizemore, who hit .350 last season.

A host of promising sophomores, including catcher Gene Beall, shortstop Dick Jauron, pitchers Ralph Remus and Bob Corcoran, and jack-of-all-trades Paul Sortal round out the Blue line-up.

"These games are a toss-up," Thoren said. "We expect Brown, perhaps a title contender, to be a little stronger than Yale. Brown has a more set line-up with many starters returning."

For the twin bill in Providence, Thoren will go basically with the same starters. In the first game, righthander Watzka will come in from left field to pitch and Joe Meo will be called on to take over the open outfield position.

In the second, seven-inning game, senior lefthander Bob Nelson will take the mound and Watzka will move back into left field. Meo will go over to right, while Pilkey leaves the line-up to go to the bullpen as ace reliever.

It seems that the Bruins, coached by Bill Livesey, are not yet up to the caliber of a serious threat to Ivy title-winner Dartmouth.

However, the Bruins do have firebrand tri-captain catcher Dean "Stump" Hoag, who was highly praised by numerous opposition coaches in the South for both his defensive talents and his .304 batting average.

Other highlights in the line-up are pitcher-centerfielder Bob Flanders, hitting .314, second baseman Bob Wieck, and righthander Bob Thorley, who hurled two straight shutouts in Florida. Flanders Thorley, and untried soph Bob Lukas will throw in the Eastern Intercollegiate League contests this weekend, including the double header with the Big Red.

"We're going in with the idea of sweeping the games," Thoren stated, "but, realistically, I would consider two out of three a good weekend."

Senate Comm. Will Study Migrant Labor Camp Bill

Liddle, the detailed program, which comes three weeks after the New York State College of Agriculture bulldozed the camp to the ground, is in response to charges by members of the University Senate, and Agriculture College officials "that we who are interested in the problems of the migrant laborers did not have anything intelligent to say."

The proposal, which also calls for the establishment of day care and pre school education services, adult education and job training and retraining programs, would be funded under the authorization of the College of Agriculture.

Liddle, who indicated that he has been in contact with people in Washington, including The Agrabusiness Accountability Project, one of Ralph Nader's programs involved in research on the Cohn farm, felt that federal, state and private funding would be available for such a model camp.

Expecting migrant workers to be used on the Cohn Farm next year, Liddle stated that he hopes his proposal "will serve as the basis for substantive discussion and mutual consideration by all sides."

Liddle's bill received support from Carl Kukkonen grad who has been involved in discussion with President Corson and representatives of the College of Agriculture and Dean of the College of Agriculture Charles E. Palm.

Palm was unavailable for comment last night.

However, committee member Prof. Daniel Padberg, agricultural economics, does not favor the proposal. "I am not sure what its objectives are," he stated, "and I don't think model camps is the only way of deal with the problem. Hopefully we will gather enough facts to make better judgements on 'model camp' alternatives," he added.

Trustee designate Robert C. Gottlieb '72, former chairman of the committee, feels that it is imperative to deal with the underlying problems and evils of labor camps.

The committee also established the ground work for dealing with its other areas of jurisdiction and set up the subcommittee on International Students, Black People and other American Racial Minorities, Women, and Gay Liberation. Membership is open to interested non-senators who should contact the Senate office by April 20 to be considered for membership.

The Hard Sell

This is the Hard Sell because we are asking students outright to offer their time and their services to the Straight. We cannot believe that everyone thinks the Straight is the ideal student union. And we cannot believe that we've already talked to everyone who has a way to make it better.

So, starting today, the we becomes you in that two new Boards will be selected soon to run the Dept. of University Unions, and from those Boards, and the people who work with them, come the ideas that run the Straight.

If you haven't got any notion of how to improve your own student unions, if you're perfectly happy with things the way they are now, then feel free to stay away. Otherwise, please come and at least talk to somebody. Even if you don't have answers. It's up to you.

Room 36, W.S.H., 9am to 5pm, Monday thru Friday, or 256-5021.

"The Gospel According To St. Matthew"

"I bring," says Pasolini's Christ, "not peace but a sword." They are the first words of doctrine that he speaks to his disciples, and they suggest at the outset the terrible message of THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO ST. MATTHEW. For this film's hostile Jesus would be expelled from any Sunday School in the land. Dirty, angry, the flies flitting hungrily about his forehead, he blasts Pharisee and fig tree impartially, burning fiercely with the passions of his mad, prophetic vision. He is no freshly laundered Jeffrey Hunter or Max von Sydow, the Christ of the hairless armpits, but as close to the real thing as we are likely to see on a movie screen for some time. While remaining as faithful to the original text as possible, Pasolini has so demythologized the familiar story that we can no longer shield ourselves from the unpleasant realities with which it confronts. "Gentle Jesus, meek and mild," is unmasked as the Marxist Christ. —John Thomas, Film Society Review, December 1969

HAROLD PINTER'S THE BIRTHDAY PARTY

It is a multi-leveled work (Alan Schneider, directing the Broadway production, declared it has 'at least 249 meanings'): you can take it as a thriller, with Goldberg and McCann as the two agents who have come to get Stanley because he has 'betrayed the organization'; you can take it as the detailing of a happening observed, as incomplete as an anecdote half-overheard or a news item whose follow-up is never published; you can take it as a psychological allegory of personal guilt or of non-conformity or a life and death. You can take it as you will — and the taking is engrossing, absorbing, fascinating.
Sunday, April 11 6:45, 9:30. $1.25

$36 WATERBEDS

An Explanation

A lot of waterbeds are being sold in Ithaca, and many people are getting ripped off paying $50 or more for the standard mattress. No one in Ithaca, however, is selling them cheaper than I. My beds are made by Noah's - Hydra-Pickle Co. of Hartford. Despite what others may tell you, they are NOT "inferior copies" of the "original west coast waterbeds." They are made from the same heavy-duty 20-gauge Union Carbide vinyl and they are sealed by the same electronic process. I order them direct from the factory. Two sizes: 4 1/2' x 7' for $36; or 6' x 7' for $38. This includes mattress and a patch-and-glue kit (in case of intentional malicious puncture). I will deliver them personally to your door. The beds are UNCONDITIONALLY GUARANTEED FOR FIVE YEARS FOR SEAMS, MATERIALS, AND WORKMANSHIP. Buy one for your room next semester — (stores compact). Frames are not essential but if you want one I will tell you how to build one rather than have you pay more money for a simple wooden frame. If you think you might be interested, call for more information.

Officers Accept Calley Verdict; Cadets Debate Justice of Trial

Waghelstein said that a soldier must obey an order provided it is legal. But if an order is given that is illegal — which the order, if it was given, in the My Lai case would have been — then one must disobey it.

Waghelstein also said that in a war such as the one in Vietnam where the support of the civilian population is the main key, "shooting the civilians is counterproductive. If you have to pacify with an M-16 machine gun, you're in trouble. That, in itself, for me would be enough to X Calley out."

Neither Bailey nor Waghelstein feel that Calley can be excused as a "victim of circumstances" or that his actions can be rationalized by the pressures he was under.

"No officer under any pressure that he might feel of the situation at that time should be driven by any of those pressures to such an act," Bailey said.

Waghelstein feels that such a claim is a "cop-out." "If you're a professional soldier, you play by the rules," he said. "If you can't play by the rules, then you hang up your uniform. From the professional point of view, there's just no excuse for it."

When asked about President Nixon's actions in the case to date, both Bailey and Waghelstein said they could understand the strong pressure from public opinion and political considerations that he is under. Both noted, however, the several chances open for appeals before the President would receive the case for any final action.

Bailey added, "I don't feel that the sentence, as it now stands, will ever be carried out fully."

Referring to the accusation of Captain Aubrey M. Daniel III, prosecutor in the Calley case, that Nixon's intervention in the case has damaged the system of military justice, Waghelstein said, "I'm inclined to sympathize with Daniel's feelings on the matter. Military law and the military in general have been taking a lot of flack from everywhere in recent years, and most of it is due to ignorance."

"Military courts are better than civilian courts and military justice is a lot better than people give it credit for," Waghelstein added. He pointed out the military review and appeal as examples.

There were a variety of comments and opinions among members of the Military Science 402 class, Waghelstein's course in military justice for ROTC seniors, when the Calley case was brought up for discussion.

One cadet said that the trial was a means of salving the country's conscience, a way of getting rid of American guilt over the Vietnam war.

Another cadet added, however, that while that may be true, there is also the danger of "guilt by association." Thus, "you can hang," he said, "but don't hang too hard."

A recurring question of the cadets' was "If we try and pass sentence on Calley, who don't we try others who commit war crimes, though perhaps not on the scope of Calley's?"

One cadet felt that "the United States should be brought to justice." He contended that war can be ambiguous, because "some men napalm and burn villages and children and get the silver cross while Calley gets tried and sentenced." To him, Calley is "no worse than the others."

He also felt that the idea of rules to warfare is "ridiculous" and asked, "Do you think the United States would abide by the Geneva Convention if they thought they'd be defeated?"

Most of the cadets were disgusted by the publicity that Calley is getting. One cadet said, "It really disturbs me that they're making him into a hero. It's as if when you put a uniform on, you're licensed to do anything."

Waghenstein said that this is due to a group of people who are "making money on the deal." He also said, "I'm not happy about it. I think much of the publicity is a lot of nonsense."

Trustee-Designates' Role Elucidated by Trustees

procedural matters, confidentiality of trustee information, and impending issues in University investments policy.

Austin H. Kiplinger, vice chairman of the board's Executive Committee, remarked that board deliberations must sometimes be confidential in order to insure free debate. All four students now endorse Kiplinger's reasoning, though some of them had earlier said they would often release confidential information to the public.

Gottlieb concluded from the day's discussions that "The stereotype of a trustee as being stuffy and close-minded really just didn't hold. I have a lot of faith that some constructive work can get going."

Miss Shelley said "It now seems that they want to get us activated pretty rapidly. I'm feeling rather optimistic right now."

Chang expressed concern that "It would be very inglorious to be kicked off the board" if the proposed charter amendment is defeated in the state legislature. "But if all our meetings are as friendly as this one, there should be no trouble," he said.
