Society of Friends Quietly Fighting War

By SEEDE WASSHERY

Members of the Society of Friends are a quiet people. They have no priests, no churches, no organized bodies, and no written creed. All of them believe in a personal relationship with their Lord and in living as He would have them live. They believe that God is in every man, and that man’s life is his answer to God. They believe in the power of the Holy Spirit to work through any individual who is willing to let Him control his life.

They are a society of more than 6,000,000 people in the United States and more than 5,000,000 in the world. They have no national body, no central authority, no pope, no king, no queen. They are a body of people who have no one to appeal to for help, but who depend upon their own strength and that of their Lord to help them.

Last year a member of the Society of Friends turned himself in to the draft board. This action was the result of the meetings of the members of the Society in Albany, but even then no member of the Society had to be drafted. In a meeting of the Society in Albany it was decided to ask young men to turn themselves in to the draft board when they are drafted.

The Rev. John Bechtel and Mrs. Ella Bugliard, former pastor of the Episcopal Church in South America, who are both members of the Society of Friends, have returned from a 10,000-mile trip through Latin America. They have returned from Brownsville, Tex. A deacon in South America, he was forced to leave by the government. He is now visiting Valdivia, Chile.

During the summer of 1967, a large caravan of young people from the United States and Canada visited Latin America. The caravan consisted of about 100 people, who had spent the summer on a tour of Latin America.

The tour was organized by the Latin American Friends, Inc., an organization of Friends who are interested in Latin America.

The tour started in New York City and ended in Mexico City. The participants were divided into several groups, each of which traveled to different parts of Latin America.

The tour was a success, and the participants gained a great deal of knowledge about Latin America. They also made many friends and helped to improve the lives of the people they visited.
